Description

This seminar builds on the lecture Theory of Society (08-29-GTh). It deepens central concepts and arguments through the joint discussion of the latest applications and further developments of social theory within the framework of a concrete social problem area – the effects of digital technologies on social orders, individuals, and social inequalities. At the center of the seminar is Marion Fourcade and Kieran Healy's monograph The Ordinal Society.

Course Requirements

Information on examinations and requirements will be announced in the lecture.

Course Materials

The course materials can be found on Stud.IP in the course Ordinal Society.
